

Most Stressful Week to Date

Graham Marcus, Stetson University

The weeks just seem to fly by faster and faster! Out of this whole experience, this week has to be by far the most stressful! And don't worry, I am going to fill you in.

On Wednesday I was scheduled to give a case review in front of all the partners. In the massive boardroom. On advanced appellate topics. Did I mention in front of all the partners? There were so many partners they actually had to bring in other chairs. Just my luck!

But as it turns out, I survived. And even more, I was told that I did a great job! My topic primarily consisted of an in-depth explanation of the new summary judgment standard promulgated by the Florida Supreme Court. Not only did that experience provide me with an opportunity to practice speaking in front of a crowd, but I also became the resident expert on the new standard as well, which I might add is super helpful in the field of law.

But that is not all we had in store for this week. We also received our mock trial packet that contained the prompt and our respective partner assignments. I am excited to have the opportunity to perform a trial in front of seasoned trial attorneys. You really could not ask for a better experience.

Although I will be very busy these next two weeks, I cannot wait for the valuable experience and feedback that is waiting on the other side!
